- The Supreme Court, in the case of FDA vs. Alliance for Hippocratic Medicine, on Thursday, June 13th, unanimously rejected the plaintiffs doctors and medical associations attempt to negate the Food and Drug Administration's loosening on the restrictions of chemical abortion drugs, due to a lack of standing (i.e., they are not abortion doctors); do not prescribe or use mifepristone. This allows abortion clinic doctors to continue prescribing them, which have been proven to be dangerous (witnessed by many former abortion clinic employees, including Abby Johnson, a former director, as told in her biopic, "Unplanned").
